

I expect this collaboration to challenge me, broaden my thinking, and push me to approach problems from completely new angles. I'm looking forward to understanding how students in Germany apply design thinking, how they structure ideas, and how multicultural teams navigate creativity together. I also expect to grow as a communicator—learning to articulate concepts clearly across cultures and time zones. I want to contribute meaningful ideas, stay reliable, and balance my work-life commitments so I can support the team throughout the project. Most importantly, I hope this experience shapes me into a more adaptable, globally minded professional.
